

Tick Exposure and Kidney Disease Risk in Dogs

From American Veterinarian: With another higher-than-average tick season looming, veterinarians should be preparing for the inevitable onslaught of tick-related veterinary visits. Even with knowledge of the dangers of tick-borne illnesses, pet owners continue to put off annual screenings. But a new study aims to help change that narrative. Click link to read more <http://www.americanveterinarian.com/news/-tick-exposure-and-kidney-disease-risk-in-dogs>